

Hannah Kommt Zurück

This project is about an unconventional love story.

In the forest, Daniel Pauline is building a house for the woman of his dreams. She left him long ago, but one of her letters sparked hope; she will come and see him at some point. Daniel's dream is her staying, and living with him.

Daniel sources building materials from his surroundings, using only a hammer and nails to make a solid structure. The house will remain in an unfinished state until Hannah comes back, only with her can it be completed.

Shirin-Yoku

One hour in the forest, all senses awake, the mind calm.

This project focuses on the natural landscape through the meditation method of forest bathing (Shirin-Yoku).

By photographing with a modified large format camera and using cyanotype chemicals as a light sensitive emulsion, the photographic process is extremely slow. Each exposure represents one hour of presence in the forest, within this duration of time a true calming connection is made with the surroundings.
